Associated Ministries Sponsors Special Prayer Vigil

On June 16, 1976, Black school children demonstrating against inferior education under South Africa's apartheid system were shot and killed by police during a peaceful march through the Soweto township. This tragedy and the ensuing six months of violence that claimed 1,000 lives has become known as the Sowto Uprising.

In December, 1985, 90 church leaders from Africa, Australia, North America and western Europe gathered in Harare, Zmbabwe, for an emergencymeeting to confront the worsening situation in southern Africa. Thirteen U.S. Church leaders attended this meeting where they heard South Africans describe the continuing brutality of the South African government and the repression of those who oppose apartheid. As a result of this meeting, June 16, 1986, the tenth anniversary of the Soweto uprising, has been declared a World Day of Prayer and Fasting to end unjust rule in South Africa.

Associated Ministries, the local association of churches, is sponsoring a special prayer vigil and service in observance of the World Day of Prayer and commemoration of the Soweto Uprising on Monday, June 16 at noon at the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, 2520 Sixth Avenue. The service will be led by local clergy and will include prayers, litanies and poems written by South African Christians. All are welcome.

Eighteen Year Old Is Designer Of Centennial License Plate

Eighteen-year-old high school senior Eric R. Booth is the designer of the state's centennial license plate. The Bellingham resident will graduate from Ferndale High School on June 9 and he's headed for the Phoenix Institute of Technology, where he plans to study advanced layout and design of production art, beginning June 24. He will use the $1500 the Department of Licensing paid for his design to meet his educational expenses. His goal is to be a graphic artist, and someday have his own agency.

Centennial

Eric's art teacher at Ferndale High distributed copies of the RFP to all the art students. In developing his ideas, he did several different sketches, using trees, mountains, circles and lines. He spent all free time working on his design, and says he barely met the deadline.

Eric loves cars. He was drawn to the pritect, because it was a challenge. He said when he received the news, he felt "ecstatic". His other interests include playing the guitar, creating logos for friends and playing volleyball. He also mentioned that art runs in the family -- mother does oil painting.

Eric was born in San Diego, California, on April 17, 1968 to Roger and Connie Booth. For 23 years, his father managed Christian format radio stations and the family lived in Edmonds, Washington; Cedarville, Ohio; Wichita, Kansas; Sacramento and Fresno, California.

They moved to Bellingham in August 1982. Roger Booth is now Executive Administrator of Health Educational Systems of Tacoma and his mother works at the Mt. Baker Kidney Center. Eric is the youngest of four brothers.

Reagan

WASHINGTON, -- President Reagan appealed to Congress today to continue to finance his space-based missile defense program and improvements in the nation's nuclear forces.

Mr. Reagan said budget cuts that would slow either program would be "the worst way to respond to the continuing pattern of Soviet activities."

The detailed statement reflected deep Administration concern that the five-year military buildup is in danger, especially the Strategic Defense Initiative, the missile defense program commonly known as "Star Wars."

'Precisely the Wrong Signal'

In an eight-page message, Mr. Reagan warned that Congress was on the verge of imperiling the nation's security, undercuts American negotiating efforts at the Geneva arms control talks and sending "precisely the wrong signal" to the Soviet leadership.

"There is no free ride," he said.

Mr. Reagan was responding to developments that have raised significant doubts among Administration officials about the willingness of Congress to provide what they consider adequate military spending. There has been particular concern over a move in the Senate to sharply curtail spending on "Star Wars" research.

Critisim on Capitol Hill

The President's message was delivered as many lawmakers criticized his announcement that he planned to abandon the 1979 strategic arms limitation treaty unless the Soviet Union made major policy changes. Democrats and Republicans began steps aimed at forcing the White House to observe the unratified pact.

Some Administration officials have expressed alarm that the decision to end adherence to the treaty could generate a backlash on Capitol Hill that would hurt financing for some strategic programs, including the MX missile and "Star Wars" research.

"If they are going to sack arms control, it would cost them on S.D.I.," said Representative Norman D. Dicks, Democrat of Washington, who introduced legislation that would bar any spending on strategic weaponry that violates the treaty's provisions.

The Senate's budget proposal sets military spending for the next fiscal year at $301 billion, about $19 billion less than the President requested. The House version is about 435 billion less than what Mr. Reagan sought.

The White House has been particularly concerned about a letter from 46 senators urging reductions in the missile-defense research program. The letter, written two weeks ago to Senator Barry Goldwater, the Arizona Republican who heads the Armed Services Committee, urged that Mr. Reagan's request of $5.4 billion be cut to $3.1 billion, only a 3 percent increase from this year's spending level. The President's request amounted to a 77 percent increase.

'Dangerous' Approach Is Cited

In his letter to Congress, Mr. Reagan declared: "Some people will argue that strategic forces must take cuts along with everything else when budgets are tight. Those "spread the pain' theories are not only false, they are dangerous.

"Every dollar taken from our strategic programs is a victory for potential aggressors. Every cut or delay weakens our cause in Geneva and adds materially to the ultimate cost of deterrence."

Words Of Wisdom

WHO HATH BELIEVED OUR REPORT? AND TO WHOM IS THE ARM OF THE LORD REVEALED?

FOR HE SHALL GROW UP BEFORE HIM AS A ROOT OUT OF THE GROUND.

HE HATH NO FORM OR COMILINESS: AND WHEN WE SHALL SEE HIM, THERE IS NO BEAUTY THAT WE SHOULD DESIRE HIM.

PSALM 105:1-35

O give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people.

Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him: talk ye of all his wondrous works.

Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord.

Seek the Lord, and his strength: seek his face evermore.

Remember his marvellous works that he hath done; his wonders, and the judgments of his mouth;

O ye seed of Abraham his servant, ye children of Jacob his chosen.

He is the Lord our God: his judgments are in all the earth.

He hath remembered his covenant for ever, the word which he commanded to a thousand generations.

Which covenant has made with Abraham, and his oath unto Isaac;

And confirmed the same unto Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant:

Saying, Unto thee willI give the land of Canaan, the lot of your inheritance:

When they were but a few men in number; yea, very few, and strangers in it.

When they went from one nation to another, from one kingdom to another people;

He suffered no man to do them wrong: yea, he reproved kings for their sakes;

Saying, Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.

Moreover he called for a famine upon the land: he brake the whole staff of bread.

He sent a man before them, even Joseph, who was sold for a servant:

Whose feet they hurt with fetters: he was laid in iron:

Until the time that his word came: the word of the Lord tried him.

The king sent and loosed him; even the ruler of the people, and let him go free.

He made him lord of his house, and ruler of all his substance:

To bind his princes at his pleasure; and teach his senators wisdom.

Israel also came into Egypt; and Jacob sojourned in the land of ham.

And he increased his people greatly; and made them stronger than their enemies.

He turned their heart to hate his people, to deal subtilly with his servants.

He sent Moses his servant; and Aaron whom he had chosen.

They shewed his signs among them, and wonders in the land of Ham.

He sent darkness, and made it dark; and they rebelled not against his word.

He turned their waters into blood, and slew their fish.

Their land brought forth frogs in abundance, in the chambers of their kings.

He spake, and there came divers sorts of flies, and lice in all their coasts.

He gave them hail for rain, and flaming fire in their land.

He smote their vines also and their fig trees; and brake the trees of their coasts.

He spake, and the locusts came, and caterpillers, and that without number.

And did eat up all the herbs in their land, and devoured the fruit of their ground.

National Baptist U.S.A. INC. Presenting Two Mass Ralies In Interest Of Overseas Missions

The National Baptist U.S.A., Inc. is presenting two mass Rallies in the interest of Overseas Missions. Dr. William J. Harvey III, the Executive Secretary of The Foreign Mission Board is the speaker for the seven and one-half million membership organization, the largest aggregation of black people anywhere in the world.

A deep interest in Missions, Christian Fellowship and Education was the motivation which called the August body together in Montgomery, Alabama in 1880. There were at least two, Missionary and Education, called and organized prior to 1880 and they had already established Missionary work on the continent of Africa before the 1880 date; but both of them relinquished their independence and became a part of the greater organization. We have had some continued work in Africa and the Caribbeans for these 106 years.

The Tacoma Rally is being held in the Bethlehem Baptist Church on Saturday, June 7, at 7:30 p.m., 4818 Portland Avenue. The Reverend Gardner, Interim Pastor. Three choirs will sing two selections each; Bethlehem, Shiloh and Saint Paul.

The Rally in Seattle is being held in the Peoples Institutional Baptist Church, Dr. E.W. Bratton, Pastor. All churches in Seattle, Everett and Renton will present themselves. Churches in Tacoma, Bremerton, Olympia, Vancouver and Portland, Oregon will meet in the new Bethlehem.

Dr. Elijah H. Hankerson, the Representative for Foreign Mission, North Pacific Baptist Convention, urgently request that if for any reason you are unable to attend your schedule meeting, please attend the meeting which you can.

"Father's" Day At Northwest Trex

While spring means baby animals and the natural emphasis on their mothers, Northwest Trek Wildlife Park near Mt. Rainier will host a special celebration for dads on Fathers' Day, June 15. Dads will be admitted to the park for only $3.00, a $1.75 savings off the regular adult admission price.

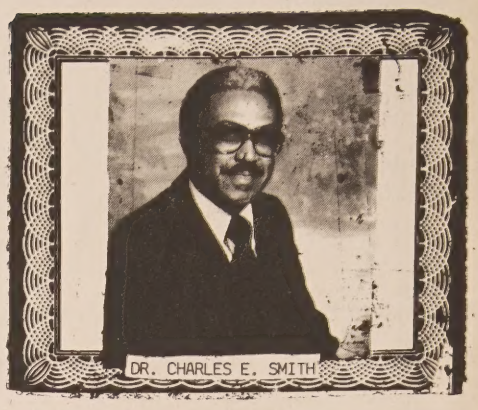
"We'll have lots of special things for dad that whole families can enjoy," said Park Naturalist Jim Erickson. "The Step-Outs, a babershop quartet group will return this year to stroll through the core area providing harmonies. We'll also have antique cars on display, provided by the Tacoma Model T Car Club."

While dads and their human families can celebrate the day together at Northwest Trek, many male animals spend the spring away from their families. "The bull elk and bighorn rams tend to form batchelor herds," Erickson said. "The females chase them away while they give birth and nurse their young. The males band together for companionship and for the protection that herding would provide in the wild." Bull moose and male caribou tend to go off by themselves. While younger bison bulls remain with their herds, the dominant males also tend to be "loaners" at this time of year.

The discount price for human fathers includes park admission and a ride on the hour long tram tour of the park's "free roaming" area where the larger animals such as moose, caribou, bighorn sheep, bison and elk live. Near the entrance are nature trails and paths leading to forest mammal, wolf, bear and birds of prey exhibits.

The 635 acre wildlife park is operated by the Metropolitan Park District of Tacoma. It is located on Highway 161, 6 miles north of Eatonville on the way to Mt. Rainier. Hours are 10AM to 6PM daily through Labor Day.

THE DOCTORS PRESCRIPTION



Placing Honor

I have a real warm feeling for Christian School teachers. Having spent so many years of my life in Christian education, I can feel the longings and frustrations of the Christian teacher.

I can remember the special victories of watching young people who looked as though they were going to fail both spiritually and academically, but who were able, when the crisis came, to surprise us all and make it.

I can remember also, the young people with tremendous gifts and abilities who lost their bearings and failed - some who never recovered to do anything worth while with their lives.

Christian teachers with any experience at all soon learn that no matter how hard they work, no matter how spiritually committed to the task they may be, there will be a percentage of those with whom they work and for whom they pray, that will be spiritual drop-outs.

Those of us who are teachers will tend to blame the home (and parents to carry a great responsibility for the success of their children), and those of us who are parents will tend to blame the Christian schools.

Unfortunately, the same kind of blame is handed around freely between fathers and mothers, between administration and faculty). We are all trying to do the same thing, but we are undermining the influences and authority of other people on our team.

We are like a basketball team which blocks the shots of its own team members and interrupts the game with skirmishes between teammates!

There is an important lesson in leadership given in Numbers 27:20. When Moses came close to the end of his life and place of ministry, God told him to give authority to Joshua, a young man who had been Moses' loyal servant, and one who had already shown evidence of the power of God in his life (see Numbers 27:18). This is what God told Moses to do: "And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient." Numbers 27:20

A great weakness I sense in much of Christian education is that we do not "Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due...honour to whom honour" (Rom. 13:7). the family does not honor the teacher, and the teacher does not honor the family. Instead of working together to build up both institutions, we tear down the authority and honor of one another.

What a wonderful thing it would be if we could put more emphasis on a clarification of goals both in the home and in the school and then work at building up the power of both parents and teachers to meet those goals by giving due honor and authority.

The school that takes lightly the tremendous investment parents make in Christian education is doomed for failure. By th same token, the family which undermines the attempts of a good school to train and discipline children, by destroying the authority of the Christian teacher will reap the consequences in its loss of authority.

We enhance our own honor and build up our own authority when we willingly share those gifts with those who are trying to meetthe same goals. Of course there are doctrinal issues that we may not compromise, and there may be interpretations of scripture that we feel are important enough to explain over and over again, but we must be constantly aware of things that are major issues and things that are minor. Not every issue is worth a serious confrontation.

In his book, 'Bringing Out the Best in People', Alan Loy McGinnis says, "If they are going anywhere near where you want to go, climb on other people's band-wagons." AMEN!

Rep. Parren Mitchel Blasts Critics Of Minority Business

NEW YORK -- Representative Parren J. Mitchell (D-MD) condemned recently the conservative groups that want to do away with the minority business set-asides while ignoring the set-asides created for defense contractors amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars.

"The minority business set-asides are miniscule when compared to those granted to some contractors favored by the Defense Department," Rep. Mitchell said. He added that many big contractors are not even required to bid against their competitors for some government contracts.

Addressing the 23rd Annual Dinner of the Interracial Council for Business Opportunity (ICBO), held recently at the New York Hilton Hotel, Rep. Mitchell told more than 1200 guests from major business corporations and from the minority business community that "There is simply no justification for the criticism of minority business set-asides."

Known as "the conscience of the Congressional Black Caucus," Rep. Mitchell conceived the creation of the "brain trust" of black professionals to support the work of the Caucus. His amendment to former President Carter's $4-billion Public Works bill in 1976 created set-asides for minority businesses that amounted to more than $625-million. The Mitchell Amendment was upheld as constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in July, 1980.

Mitchell refused to "dignity" the specific calls for an elimination of minority business set-asides by Clarence Pendleton, Chairman of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. Mitchell noted, instead, that President

ST. MATTHEW 20:1- 10

For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

And when he had agreed with the labourers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace,

And said unto them; God ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first.

And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny.

But when the first came, they suppose that they should have received more;

NBL-Buy Freedom Pilot Program

"Can T.V. producer Tony Brown's 'Buy Freedom' project fly?" asked Simeon Booker in JET magazine.

"National Business League President Arthur Teele believes that it's time for Blacks to begin supporting their own businesses and will launch a pilot 'NBL-Buy Freedom' drive June 6th in New Orleans. Already signed up for the inital move is New Orleans Mayor Sidney Barthelemy," the highly respected Washington Bureau Chief of JET added.

Booker's question, however, raises another question: What is happening with the Buy Freedom drive, announced last October? Before I answer that question, let me explain in more detail the NBL-Buy Freedom Connection, referred to by JET.

It is one of many associations made between the Buy Freedom drive and major Black organizations. Our objective is to spend up to 50 percent of our massive income ($200 billion in 1984; projected to be $900 billion by year 2000) with a Black-Freedom business or professional.

This will produce one million new jobs for Blacks for each additional billion dollars we keep among ourselves. Currently we keep only $12.6 billion (6.6 percent). If we adhere to the Buy Freedom Plan, we will keep $450 billion (50 percent) within 14 years and create 4 million new jobs.

That would mean a reduction in female-headed homes (projected to be 70 percent, already over 50 percent, by year 2000 when Black male unemployment is expected to also be 70 percent) because Black men could head families because they could find work -- work that the Black community created with its own income.

Presently, for every five Black women who work, there is only one Black male employed. The government had proved that it is unwilling or unable to solve Black unemployment; indeed the federal government is committed to the "Phillips Curve," an economic manipulation to keep the general unemployment rate near 7 percent in order to keep inflation down. Of course, that's 6 percent for Whites and 20 percent for Blacks.

Once the Black consumer learns that wealth equals power and power equals Freedom in all forms (economic, educational, social and political), he or she will seek out a Black businesses that is committed to re-cycling the extra income spent by an aware Black community back into that community.

We call this group "Freedom" businesses because they have agreed to a five-point "Freedom" pledge: (1) treat the consumer with courtesy; (2) offer competitive prices; (3) give price discounts if possible; (4) create new jobs when possible; and (5) become involved as a business leader in solving the chronic problems (illiteracy, single-parent homes, unemployment, etc.) of our community. We, in turn, publish a list of these businesses.

These "Freedom" businesses are identified by a "Freedom Seal" decal on the window and in their advertising. In effect, the 15,000 member businesses of the National Business League will be asked to cooperate and test the viability of buying our freedom.

On June 6 in New Orleans at the NBL's annual Founder's Day Dinner at the Fairmont Hotel, I will outline the pilot plan in a keynote address before the Who's Who of Louisiana and America (the governor, New Orleans Mayor Barthelemy, NBL Chairman C.J. Patterson, Congressional Black Caucus Chairman Mickey Leland, officials of the National Baptist Convention (7 million members) and the Progressive National Baptist Convention (1.5 million members).

Buy Freedom has already been endorsed by the NAACP and the National Black Leadership Roundtable (300 leading organizations); the latter has pledged a specific quota of support, totaling one million members to buy from a Freedom business.

As a board member of NBL and chairman of Buy Freedom, I am fully aware of the awesome and frustrating task of reversing hundreds of years of psychological damage that results in economic, social and political ineptness. But this NBL-Buy Freedom pilot will work because we have the right idea at the right time with the right people involved.

The churches will preach the "Gospel of Freedom" (God wants us to live a good life on earth) and the NBL, founded by Booker T. Washington, will give us the kind of services we deserve on this earth.

After all, Buy Freedom is based on faith in God and sound economics. Will it work? It's a win-win situation.

The Right To Personal Privacy And The Public Right To Know. Where It Begins And Stops

OLYMPIA -- Where does the right to personal privacy stop, and the public's right to know begin? This question will be the basis for discussion during a House Constitution, Elections & Ethics Committee hearing scheduled for 8 a.m. Friday, June 6 in House Hearing Room D.

Committee chair, Rep. Ruth Fisher, will lead an examination of a recent Washington Supreme Court decision restricting access to public utility records. The high court's latest findings could affect future investigations by law enforcement agencies and other government entities.

"Every year, more questions arise from the debates on personal privacy and how it relates to the public good," said Fisher, a Pierce County Democrat. "As society and technology become more complicated, so do the legal questions surrounding disclosure of public and private records. This hearing will give the public a chance to become more involved in this important discussion."

Also, the committee will hear public testimony discussing the degree to which government regulates the collection, maintenance, use or dissemination of customer information by the phone company and financial institutions.

"Delving into electric utility records has netted marijuana growers who showed high power usage," said Fisher. "But, a lot of law abiding people see what's been done in these cases and wonder how their electric, phone and cable television billing records are being used. They certainly have some legitimate questions to ask and the committee is ready and willing to listen to them," said Fisher.

The "Bright" Side Of The Deficit: Investing In Government Securities

While the debate over how to reduce the U.S. budget deficit of $200+billion goes on, the federal government continues to borrow to finance the shortfall between its receipts and expenditures. Worrisome thought the deficit may be from a public policy standpoint, it represents an attractive investment opportunity for the many people who lend the government money.

The U.S. government issues three kinds of direct, marketable debt obligations:

* Treasury bills (called T-bills), which mature in a year or less and are sole at a discount. That means you pay less than face value for each bill but receive face value at maturity. The minimum T-bill denomination is $10,000 with increments of $5,000 thereafter.

* Treasury notes, which mature in two to 10 years, require a minimum investment of $1,000 to $5,000, depending on their maturity. Treasury notes are sold at face value and pay interest semi-annually.

Treasury securities are the safest investments available. They pose no credit risk whatsoever because the U.S. government guarantees payment of interest and principal. Remember, though, that the government securities, like all debt instruments, are subject to market risk. Their value rises if interest rates fall after you buy them, and vice-versa.

The market for Treasuries is huge -- amounting to nearly $2 trillion in outstanding debt at any given moment -- and liquid. That means you can sell Treasury securities quickly and easily. And unlike most other bonds, many Treasury issues are not callable before maturity, so you can count on receiving the stated rate of interest for the life of the security. Income from Treasuries is exempt from state and local taxes.

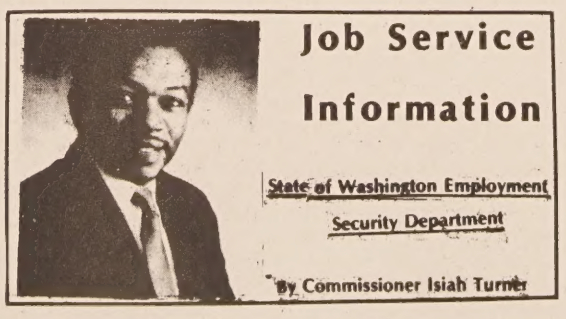
You can buy newly issued Treasuries directly from a district or branch Federal Reserve Bank at no charge, or from a brokerage firm or bank for a nominal fee. If, however, you wish to sell a Treasury security or purchase older issues (which, for example, may be trading at a discount to their issue price), you can do so only through a brokerage firm or bank.

Investing in government securities at a brokerage firm makes good sense First, you can immediately start earning more money on your interest. The firm immediately credits interest payments to your account (a service for which many banks charge a fee). Then, your Financial Consultant can arrange to "sweep" your interest into a money-market fund or quickly re-invest the earnings into other securities.

Second, buying government securities from a brokerage firm enhances your financial flexibility. These securities become part of your marginable portfolio, against which you can borrow at rates often below those charged by banks.

Investors who, with the aid of their Financial Consultants look realistically at any economic environment will find opportunities. In the case of the U.S. budget deficit, government securities represent an opportunity to achieve an attractive real rate of return (determined by subtracting the current inflation rate from the yield of your investments) that is both safe and exempt from state and local taxes.

In addition, considering that -- when bought from a brokerage firm--interest earned on government securities can be compounded, and that these securities also are marginable, they truly represent the "bright" side of the deficit.



Recognizing Excellence

The hundreds of employees in our Job Service Centers and other offices throughout the state have made a commitment to making the Employment Security Department the epitome of professionalism, competence, productivity and efficiency as they serve the citizens of Washington. We are well on the way to making the vision of Employment Security 1987 a reality.

On Thursday, June 12, at 1:30 p.m. we will be presenting awards to 27 individuals and the staff of two units. They have been nominated and selected by their peers to receive the Outstanding Employee Award. Governor Booth Gardner has accepted my invitation to join us in the awards presentation at the Broadway Performance Hall at Seattle Central Community College.

From the Tacoma area we will be honoring Millicent Blocquer, West Pierce County Opportunities Office and Sandra Glover, Tacoma Youth Employment Center. From the Olympia Central Office awards will be presented to Gary Bodeutsch, Program Analysis; Rose Ellis, Benefit Operations; Marilyn Fromm, Quality Control; Helene Olsen, Tax Administration; Silvia Behrends, Office Services; James Dickerson, Labor Market and Economic Analysis; Carol Harris, Staff Development; Richard Noahr, Production Services; and Charlotte White and Sherry Wood, of Program Support and Training.

The other award recipients will be coming from offices all over the state.

Crimestoppers

This week Crime Stoppers will pay up to a $1,000.00 cash reward for information that leads authorities to the arrest and felony charges filed on the person responsible for the following crime:

Once again, Downtown Tacoma has been the scene for another violent crime.

On Sunday, May 18, 1986, at approximately 1:25 a.m., a man was shot following a fist fight in the J&M Taver, located at 1344 Pacific Avenue. The victim sustained multiple gunshot wounds to his chest.

The suspect, who fled the tavern after the shooting, is described as a Mexican male, possibly named "FREDDIE", 35-40 years of age, 5'5", medium build, with black hair. He was wearing a beige shirt and gray slacks. He may possibly have fled in an orange Pinto.

Tacoma Police have been plagued in recent months with shootings, stabbings, robberies, and assaults in the Downtown area and would appreciate any help you could give.

So, if you have any information regarding this crime, call Crime Stoppers at 591-5959. Callers need not give their names and all calls are kept strictly confidential.

Crime Stoppers also pays cash rewards for information that leads to the arrest and charges filed in any other felony crime.

Safety Investigation Of Nuclear Waste- By Brock Adams

Seattle -- "It's crazy to even think of shipping the nation's highly radioactive waste across our highways and dumping it into an unstable hole in Hanford," U.S. Senate Candidate Brock Adams said. "We need to investigate the surface transportation of radioactive waste and the safety of monitored retrievable storage facilities. And we can do it now while the state and the Department of Energy are in court."

Adams comments were in response to the selection of Hanford as one of the top three finalists for the nation's disposal site for highly radioactive waste.

"I agree with Governor Gardner's action to challenge the Department of Energy's environmental assessment of the Hanford site. At the same time, we should solve the unanswered safety problems," Adams said. "Let's not push this issue just because of the Department of Energy's timetable."

As a former U.S. Secretary of Transportation Adams is concerned about the movement of high level radioactive waste over the nation's roads and rail systems.

"We discovered the problems with hazardous waste shipments when I was Secretary of Transportation and we required tough identification and safety standards for the transportation of dangerous cargo. Safe transportation just can't be neglected," he said.

Adams said up to 17 shipment of highly radioactive waste a day could pass over Washington highways if Hanford becomes the repository.

"Who will be liable for damages? Who will respond to accidents? Do local authorities have the resources and training to deal with accidents? The people of this state deserve answers to those serious questions," Adams said.

"The cloud of secrecy surrounding the recent movement of radioactive waste from Taiwan through our ports shows the Department of Energy doesn't have a good record of cooperation with state and local officials."

Adams also said Congress should reassess the recommendations of the 1982 act which began the respository selection process. "This is the time to re-evaluate the issue of a monitored retrievable storage facility."

"We can step back from the DOE time-line (for burying radioactive waste) and explore MRS," Adams said.

An MRS facility could package spent fuel and prepare it for shipment to a central location. It could cut down on the transportation mileage and handling of spent fuel from several nuclear plants.

Adams also renewed his call for Senate oversight hearings on all aspects of nuclear reactors and their waste. He said the N Reactor at Hanford should not be restarted until a complete Senate investigation has been completed.

Religious Groups Win Equal Access To Public Facilities

May 28, 1986 -- Facing a lawsuit set to go to trial on June 9, the Henrico County, Virginia board of supervisors passed a new policy doing away with restrictions on the use of county facilities by religious and political groups.

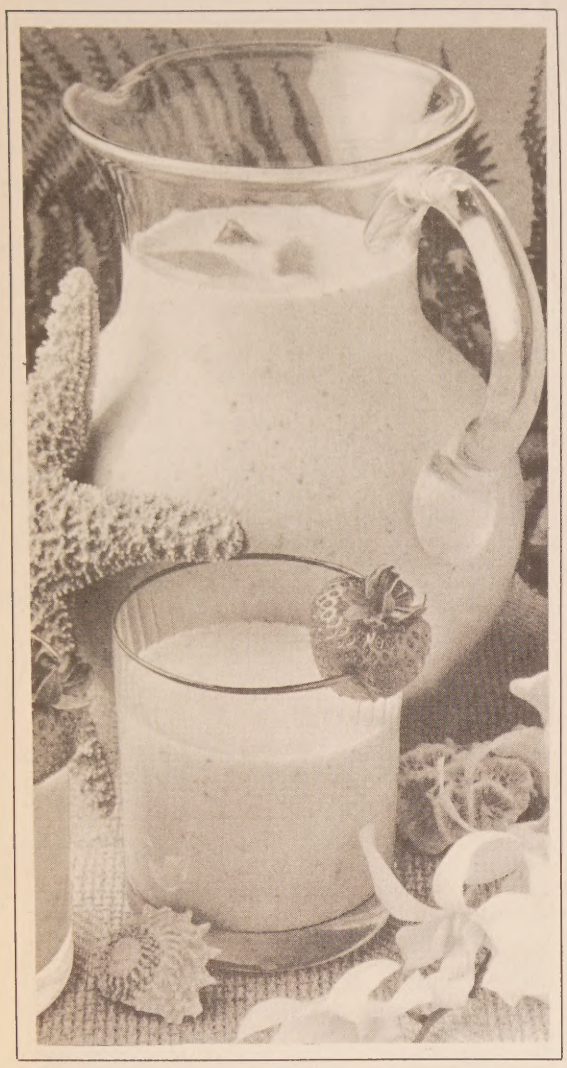
June Is Dairy Month, Celebrate With A Tropical Daquiri



This month marks the 50th anniversary of June Dairy Month. It is also the beginning of summer and the height of the local strawberry season. Why not celebrate these joyful events with a welcome summer dinner, complete with Washington strawberries and fresh, local dairy produts?

None of these recipes are time-consuming, and the salad and dessert can be prepared ahead of time. Then, just assemble ingredients as it is time for drinks, dinner and dessert!

To start, create rasberry, strawberry or banana daiquiris with mild, rum and ice to make a summer cooler with a nutritional extra.

Tropical Daiquiri

1½ C. chopped rasberries or strawberries
fresh or frozen or 2 small ripe bananas
¼ c. frozen limeade concentrate,
thawed but still cold
1 c. light rum (optional)
1 c. milk
2 T. sugar
1 c. chopped ice cubes

Combine all ingredients in blender and mix until smooth. Serves 4.

Treat Summer Dairy Foods With Care

Dairy Foods need to be handled with care in the summer. Never place food containing dairy products on a buffet table in the hot sun. Rather, keep them under refrigeration until serving time and be sure to set them back in the refrigerator before they "lose their cool."

Keep most dairy products at between 34 to 40 degrees -- ice cream, of course, must be kept at 0 degrees F.

Cream will stay fresh for about a week if you follow these guidelines:

* Keep it at 40 degrees or lower. In the store, make cream one of your last selections before heading for the checkout.

* Be sure to close the carton after each use. Cream can easily absorb flavors in the refrigerator.

* When whipping cream, be sure your bowl and beaters are clean, dry and well chilled. This will help produce a full-bodied whipped cream.

* A tablespoon of cream in your coffee has only 20 calories, and makes coffee smooth and easier to digest.

* Sour cream may be kept for up to four weeks if its temperature does not rise above 40 degrees F.

Ice Cream and ice milk should be stored at 0 degrees or below.

* A tightly closed carton prevents shrinking, drying and the formation of ice crystals.

* After some of the ice cream has been scooped out, press a piece of plastic wrap onto the ice cream surface. This protects against separations.

* If you eat ice cream infrequently, wrap the carton with foil or plastic wrap or place it in a plastic bag.

* With proper care, ice cream may be stored for up to two months.

Yogurt can be a wonderful summer refresher.

* Plain yogurt is a richer source of protein, riboflavin and calcium and contains fewer calories than sweetened varieties. Flavor it with fresh fruit, if you choose.

* You can make a delicious, creamy dressing for fruit salad by combining the juice of a lemon with a small container of plain yogurt and adding brown sugar to taste. This dressing has from 12 to 20 calories per tablespoon, depending on the amount of sugar you add. Compare this with the calories in mayonnaise (99 per tablespoon) or French dressing (67 per tablespoon).

* A light, nourishing summer breakfast can take only a minute or two to prepare. Try eating one cup of yogurt with fresh fruit and a bran muffin for a cool start to a hot day.

Dept. Of Licensing

OLYMPIA -- Beginning June 11, a few motorists will have a chance to make the simplest of statements on personalized license plates, statements with just one letter or number.

Under legislation which takes effect next month, the Department of Licensing will grant only 32 single-digit "vanity" plates. All letters except "I" and "O" and numbers "1" and "0" will be issued. The exempted letters and numbers will not be issued because they are indistinguishable on a license plate.

Until now, personalized plates could have a combination of two to seven letters and/or numbers.

Applications for single-digit plates will be accepted and processed on a first-come, first-served basis beginning June 11 at the King County Auto Licensing Agency, King County Admnistration Building, 500 Fourth Avenue, Seattle, and at the Department of Licensing office in Olympia.

Application forms will be available statewide at Auto Licensing agents, Driver Licensing Examining stations, Game Department offices and the Department of Licensing in Olympia. A copy of the current vehicle registration should accompany the application.

OLYMPIA -- Beginning June 11, permits for special parking privileges will be available to licensed nursing homes, senior citizen centers and private non-profit agencies that transport disabled persons eligible for such privileges.

The permit becomes available to these agencies under Substitute House Bill 1815 passed by the 1986 Legislature and signd by Governor Booth Gardner on March 21.

The permit is to be displayed and used by organizations only while they transport individuals who are eligible for special disabled parking privileges. Vehicles issued permits must be operated by the organizations, which will be responsible for fines and penalties imposed for improper used of the permit. Organizations may obtain a special parking permit for each vehicle they operate.

Applications forms are available at Driver Licensing Examining stations, County Auditors offices, and the Disabled Parking Unit of the Department of Licensing, P.O. Box 9909, Olympia, Wa. 98504. Applicants must be sent to the Disabled Parking Unit for processing and issuance of the permit.

Women's Success In Resisting And Recovering From Sexual Assualt

SuccessLine Week is the first event in Washington State history that will celebrate women's success in resisting and recovering from sexual assualt. Alternatives To Fear, a Seattle-based prevention program, is conducting SuccessLine Week under the sponsorship of Seafirst bank. SuccessLine coincides with the annual Rape Awareness Week (June 22-28) in Washington. During SuccessLine Week, the public is encouraged to call a 24-hour phone line and to tell their stories of success. Alternatives To Fear is seeking volunteers to answer phone lines and to help collect and document these encouraging stories.

Explaining the reasons behind the SuccessLine Project, coordnator Julie Meyer said, "For years Puget Sound rape hotline counselors and self-defense instructors have been hearing stories of women who have successfully fended off or survived rape and other assaults. Too often we see and hear only about the victimization of women, but we know from our experience that women have a long history of successful resistance."

A national study on the incidence of sexual assault indicated that for every one woman who is assaulted, three women successfully deter or resist an attack. Other studies show that a woman who resists an attack runs no greater risk of being hurt than a woman who tries nothing at all--and her chances of getting away safely are 60-80 percent better.

Py Bateman, director of Alternatives To Fear, says of the project, "We think it's time we celebrated women's success. The women who have struggled through the effects of rape or child sexual abuse have had to call upon as much --maybe--more--courage than those who have fought back. We're happy to have an opportunity to unite those heroic women in a celebration of success."

SuccessLine's 24-hour phone lines will be open from 12:00 noon Sunday, June 22 until 9 p.m. Saturday, June 28. The telephone number to call is 328-5347.

In response, attorneys with the Rutherford Institute, a national organization specializing in the defense of religious liberties, immediately dropped the suit they had filed in behalf of the Richmond Church of the Redeemer.

The out-of-court settlement, approved by the board on May 14, opened up county facilities to all groups on an equal basis, as well as authorized reimbursement of nearly $9,000 in attorneys' fees.

Richmond Church of the Redeemer, pastored by Michael Mosteller, filed suit against Henrico County on March 19, after the church sought and was denied permission to hold an Easter sunrise service in one of the county's parks. County officials based their action on a policy that expressly banned the use of county facilities for political activities or religious services.

In their written complaint filed in U.S. district court, Rutherford Institute attorneys argued that the restrictions violated the church's First Amendment rights to freedom of speech and religion, as well as their right to equal protection of the law by discriminating against selected types of speech.

Two days later the board amended its policy by lifting the ban on religious and political activities in public parks--a compensation the church's attorneys considered too narrow to forestall the lawsuit. U.S. District Judge Richard Williams called the policy change "band-aid legislation."
